

CASE-02

Behavioral Summary

Metric	Value
Total posts collected	56.0
Data span days	44.0
Posting frequency per day	1.28
Late night post ratio	12%
Avg sentiment score	0.43
Negative post ratio	7%
First person pronoun ratio	4%
Mental health subreddit ratio	38%
Unique subreddits visited	8

Sample Posts

Post 1 | 2025-10-05 12:29 UTC | r/mentalhealth | comment | ↑ 3

The more you resist - the more it will daunt you. Try to observe it & it will leave. It may sound ridiculous to you. But read this sentence - try not to picture a monkey with a banana in is hand.

Post 2 | 2025-10-17 04:39 UTC | r/mentalhealth | comment | ↑ 3

It's very normal to feel this way, you must be feeling very bad about yourself as this may sound like an addiction. I am a Counselling Psychologist if you need any help.

Post 3 | 2025-10-17 04:45 UTC | r/selfimprovement | comment | ↑ 1

It's really disturbing for you, I can understand that. Not having a clear path leads to anxiety, it's very normal with us as a human being. If you wish to seek professional help, I am here to connect.

Post 4 | 2025-10-25 02:33 UTC | r/mentalhealth | comment | ↑ 1

Hi, It's really empowering the way you think about your daughter. She might be struggling with PTSD as a professional I am suggesting you should consult a therapist. It will only help.

Post 5 | 2025-10-31 05:08 UTC | r/mentalhealth | comment | ↑ 1

Hey, there hope you are doing okay. I am a Counseling Psychologist if you wish to connect. I do offer probono sessions as well so budget won't be the issue.

Post 6 | 2025-11-12 09:09 UTC | r/mentalhealth | post | ↑ 15

Why addiction is hard to break? Addiction is the hardest to break cause of its repetition, the more you do the behaviour it becomes automatic in nature forming the cycle of :

Trigger - Behaviour - Reward

Our mind start looking at the easiest thing to do at the time of distress.

Post 7 | 2025-11-12 09:24 UTC | r/mentalhealth | comment | ↑ 1

Yes, that's where the roles of triggers come into play. In your case being sick, tired and sawing others increases the chances of it. But as you mentioned you are being sober for a year. The need or reward must be compensated through something, let us know what's helping you out?

Post 8 | 2025-11-12 10:31 UTC | r/mentalhealth | comment | ↑ 1

That's a really nice thing to share your progress and be authentic about it. I myself am a Counseling Psychologist. Please continue on your way to become sober again, more power to you. Life tastes better without those substances it's just we haven't tasted life like it before.
