

CASE-04

Behavioral Summary

Metric	Value
Total posts collected	183.0
Data span days	74.0
Posting frequency per day	2.46
Late night post ratio	39%
Avg sentiment score	0.17
Negative post ratio	24%
First person pronoun ratio	6%
Mental health subreddit ratio	13%
Unique subreddits visited	37

Sample Posts

Post 1 | 2025-09-09 15:17 UTC | r/insomnia | comment | ↑ 1

Same here now that I know that giving up fixes my problem. My brain tries very hard to replicate the same conditions. I also got into some spiritual means to solve this problem. I figured I should just become enlightened not only to defeat this fear but for all fears. So, I studied spiritual philosophies, and honestly, there is a practice or knowledge I should say that shows promise because it quite literally ends the mind. It's pretty scary but incredibly liberating. I would not recommend it to

Post 2 | 2025-09-13 20:49 UTC | r/offmychest | post | ↑ 2

Damage control anxiety I'm in a support group because I want peace in my life. They start some icebreakers. They begin by requesting us to share something fun about myself. I feel no such fact bubbling within me so I lie. I do this because I'm trying to control the damage that might be inflicted onto me based on my beliefs. I believe I'm inferior to others, I believe that being an inconvenience for others will result poorly for me. I'm not doing anything wrong. The body the mind is not doing any

Post 3 | 2025-09-20 16:48 UTC | r/nonduality | post | ↑ 10

Anxiety Anyone else on this path with a background of loneliness and anxiety?

I've been following the non-dual path for a while, but my life didn't build me up to be someone who loves change. What I notice in some communities is that people present their way as the only way very blunt, very hardcore. I get that directness can be useful for some, but for me it often feels like a doctor saying "just take the needle" without noticing my fear of needles. The medicine might be good, but the delivery

Post 4 | 2025-09-20 17:54 UTC | r/SpiritualAwakening | post | ↑ 2

Anxiety Anyone else on this path with a background of loneliness and anxiety?

I've been following the non-dual path for a while, but my life didn't build me up to be someone who loves change. What I notice in some communities is that people present their way as the only way very blunt, very hardcore. I get that directness can be useful for some, but for me it often feels like a doctor saying "just take the needle" without noticing my fear of needles. The medicine might be good, but the delivery

Post 5 | 2025-09-20 18:03 UTC | r/awakened | post | ↑ 3

Anxiety Anyone else on this path with a background of loneliness and anxiety?

I've been following the non-dual path for a while, but my life didn't build me up to be someone who loves change. What I notice in some communities is that people present their way as the only way very blunt, very hardcore. I get that directness can be useful for some, but for me it often feels like a doctor saying "just take the needle" without noticing my fear of needles. The medicine might be good, but the delivery

Post 6 | 2025-09-20 18:52 UTC | r/enlightenment | post | ↑ 1

Anxiety Anyone else on this path with a background of loneliness and anxiety?

I've been following the non-dual path for a while, but my life didn't build me up to be someone who loves change. What I notice in some communities is that people present their way as the only way very blunt, very hardcore. I get that directness can be useful for some, but for me it often feels like a doctor saying "just take the needle" without noticing my fear of needles. The medicine might be good, but the delivery

Post 7 | 2025-09-20 18:55 UTC | r/AdvaitaVedanta | post | ↑ 3

Anxiety Anyone else on this path with a background of loneliness and anxiety?

I've been following the non-dual path for a while, but my life didn't build me up to be someone who loves change. What I notice in some communities is that people present their way as the only way very blunt, very hardcore. I get that directness can be useful for some, but for me it often feels like a doctor saying "just take the needle" without noticing my fear of needles. The medicine might be good, but the delivery

Post 8 | 2025-09-24 18:21 UTC | r/DarkNightofTheSoul | post | ↑ 4

Anxiety Anyone else on this path with a background of loneliness and anxiety?

I've been following the non-dual path for a while, but my life didn't build me up to be someone who loves change. What I notice in some communities is that people present their way as the only way very blunt, very hardcore. I get that directness can be useful for some, but for me it often feels like a doctor saying "just take the needle" without noticing my fear of needles. The medicine might be good, but the delivery
