I know how that feels I'm so sorry you're going through it. Do you take anything for sleep? Maybe you could ask your Dr for something to sleep for emergency?

Sometimes...I like Christian hip-hop/rap mostly if using for that reason. Sometimes I still hear them in the music though if it's bad but thankfully not so bad today.

There's not a group in my area so I joined a group at a church that does 12 step programs for addiction and various other things. I talked to the leader about it and they said everyone has their own things going on and that I fit in fine. If you can't find something else, it may be worth a shot, the AA or whatever there is.

That happened to me when I tried to switch meds before. I hear them all the time but they haven't done that in a while thankfully. I'm so sorry you're going through it

Do ear plugs work for anyone? Headphones? Safety gear? Looking for the best way to block out voices in noise...music in headphones just works sometimes but the voices sometimes make their way into media. Does anyone have success with earplugs or something?

I do. I started going when my issues were really bad and I was open about it. It's a small church and has been a blessing to me , it's a pretty good peer support system in a way

I have the same issue. It's exhausting . They're everywhere in all the sounds , I wear earplugs but can still hear them sometimes

I hear all my thoughts outside of my head and voices comment on my thoughts Constantly. From when I wake up till I go to sleep , it's really hard not to think it's ppl messing with me with some kind of technology. Does anyone else have the same experience?
