

CASE-10

Behavioral Summary

Metric	Value
Total posts collected	255.0
Data span days	75.0
Posting frequency per day	3.42
Late night post ratio	49%
Avg sentiment score	-0.01
Negative post ratio	43%
First person pronoun ratio	9%
Mental health subreddit ratio	45%
Unique subreddits visited	22

Sample Posts

Post 1 | 2025-09-12 23:28 UTC | r/Anxiety | post | ↑ 2

I hate that my OCD takes over I have a lot of anxiety around my T gel and getting it places it shouldn't be and even though I talked to my doctor about it yesterday and have a plan to add a booster to my anxiety med, until I get it, I'm still stuck in the cycle of worry and cleaning until I feel like I'm going crazy.

This isn't forever right? And the booster medication on top of my anxiety med will help? I just need some reassurance, please and thank you. I'm so tired...

Post 2 | 2025-09-16 21:41 UTC | r/Anxiety | post | ↑ 2

Buspirone side effects My main anxiety med (Duloxetine) stopped working as well as it should have and my doctor put me on Buspirone to use as a booster, but my heart rate is elevated after taking it.

I already contacted my doctor today to see what to do about it, but it almost feels like it's trying to put me into a heart attack or something (I know it's not and that I'm fine, it just feels like it).

This is apparently a rare but known side effect of the Buspirone, but how do I get through t

Post 3 | 2025-09-24 17:34 UTC | r/Anxiety | post | ↑ 2

Lowering a high heart rate How do I naturally lower my heart rate?

Since this whole mix up with my anxiety meds, I'm in the 90s to low 100s most days. I'm off my Buspirone and Duloxetine for a wash out period before my PCP will try something else. However, I do take Tizanidine for muscle spasms and arthritis pain due to disability.

How can I calm down enough that my body responds and my heart rate goes back down to normal levels? Tips or tricks?

Thank you so much for all your help!

Post 4 | 2025-09-24 23:13 UTC | r/Anxiety | post | ↑ 0

My mom said something nasty I was freaking out over dinner about this wash out and not having my meds when I have anxiety and OCD daily due to another medication I take and being terrified of transfer and possibly making my mom and service dog sick if they're exposed, even after five years on this medication with no exposure issues.

My mom said that my being worried about not having any med after having anxiety since I was 12 and never doing a wash out before sounds like an addiction.

It's n

Post 5 | 2025-09-30 18:01 UTC | r/Anxiety | post | ↑ 1

Is it okay to prioritize? I had a smaller anxiety attack today and so decided not to take the medication that is part of my trigger (I'm not scared of the medication itself for me, but I'm terrified of contamination and accidentally making other people sick with it, always have been and it's been five years without major incident), but without any anxiety medication in my system everything is amplified and I'm having trouble coping and I know that if I put it on it will lead to a bigger anxiety

Post 6 | 2025-10-08 19:16 UTC | r/Anxiety | post | ↑ 1

Meloxicam and anxiety meds I started Meloxicam for arthritis pain (I'm disabled and use a wheelchair) but ever since then my PCP has been having trouble finding a medication to control my anxiety and OCD, because a lot of them interact with the Meloxicam.

Is anyone on Meloxicam who has found something that works for their anxiety and OCD? I'm trying to think outside the box but I don't know all my options.

The Atenolol helped my heart rate but not my anxiety since it works on the body instead

Post 7 | 2025-11-02 15:52 UTC | r/Anxiety | post | ↑ 1

Managing Anxiety while on Meloxicam I have hip dysplasia and arthritis in my right hip from having cerebral palsy. I'm on Meloxicam for the pain, but I have generalized anxiety disorder so I can't take traditional anti anxiety meds because of the GI bleeding risk, which is not something I want to worry about or deal with.

I'm currently on 2 mg of Abilify for the anxiety but I don't think it works real well because my anxiety and OCD are really, really bad right now.

Has anyone here with anxi

Post 8 | 2025-11-12 01:16 UTC | r/FTMOver30 | post | ↑ 7

How do I do this? I have a problem with my T, and I'm hoping someone can help me come up with a solution.

I keep getting a T solution when I need a T gel, because I'm disabled and the solution is too watery for me to apply without making a mess, which sends me into an anxiety attack because of my fear of contamination and spreading it to people who don't want or need it.

What can I use to apply it without it making a gigantic mess, because the applicator doesn't help?
Thank you for all your
